Merely no terms to spell out. We have read through and i also am confident that i will gonna read yet again again in the future. You will not sense monotony at anytime of your own time (that's what catalogs are for about should you question me).

Not illustrated. 1914 Excerpt: .1,500 or 1,600 feet above the Snake, and a few hundred yards to the west a heavy underlying series of grayish sandstone outcrops, showing about the same direction and rate of inclination. The latter deposits afford obscure vegetable remains, which, together with their lithology, warrant their identification with the Laramie. If there be unconformity between these beds and the gray calcareous conglomerate, it is not apparent at this locality. It is the lower beds here described that should probably be referred to the Evanston. They may, however, be Frontier or Bear River. The Evanston formation in the Fall River basin reaches a maximum thickness of about 9,500 feet. The beds generally dip 15--45 E., but farther west, toward the older beds, they dip more steeply. The Evanston in this basin lies unconformably upon Weber quartzite and later Carboniferous, Triassic, and Jurassic beds, involving an unconformity of more than 20,000 feet. The rocks consist chiefly of clay, carbonaceous shale, shaly sandstone, and brown, gray, yellow, and white sandstone. Associated with these rocks are some coal beds, but owing to the extensive talus cover, to their ready weathering, and to the lack of prospecting it is not possible to state how thick or numerous they are. Probably they contain nearly as much coal as the Adaville formation east of Labarge Ridge. The fossils collected in these beds by members of this party were studied by T. W. Stanton, who makes the following report: 1 St. John, Orestes, Twelfth...
