RareBooksClub. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 30 pages. Original publisher: Washington, D. C. (P. O. Box 37050, Washington, D. C. 20013) : The Office, 2000. OCLC Number: (OCoLC)43722908 Subject: Foodborne diseases -- United States. Excerpt: . . . B-284297 and contract specifications that ensure food quality and nutrition, neither one specifically addresses the topic of ensuring the safety of food in procurement, with one exception - the First Choice manual directly addresses safety in the procurement of pre-cut fresh produce. Without recommending contract provisions to ensure the safety of such produce, the manual suggests visiting the vendors plant before contracting and suggests evaluating key areas, such as processing procedures and food safety measures. However, the manual contains no specific guidance for ensuring safety in the procurement of other types of food, such as meat, poultry, and dairy products or processed fruits, vegetables, and juices. Information is readily available from USDA that, if made available to school food authorities, could help ensure the safety of foods that they procure. Such information appears in (1) USDAs contract specifications for inspecting, storing, and transporting donated food products, as well as for addressing special safety concerns presented by certain foods and (2) the Farm Service Agencys methodology for formally examining the quality and safety practices of suppliers before accepting their bids. In addition, the Agricultural Marketing Services Food Quality Assurance staff, which has provided presentations to some school food service professionals on procurement practices that promote the safety of purchased food, has developed a list of about 140 commercial item descriptions, which specify the prominent characteristics of each product. While USDAs First Choice manual refers to these descriptions as a source of information about food products, the descriptions also include useful information on other...
